It is imperative that children make time for creative learning. Studies have proven that children who get their hands on artwork regularly would be able to develop their imagination, physical, cognitive and emotional strength. Play is important to a healthy brain development. Children learn how to interact with the outside world through play.

At House of Love, we provide art supplies (ie watercolor sets, crayons etc), as donated by the public for our children's use for school work.

Our children here learn how to thrift on these supplies and make every ink count.

NEW NORM

In actuality, online studies during the MCO period poses heaps of benefits, when we choose to embrace the change in learning methodology.

It is :

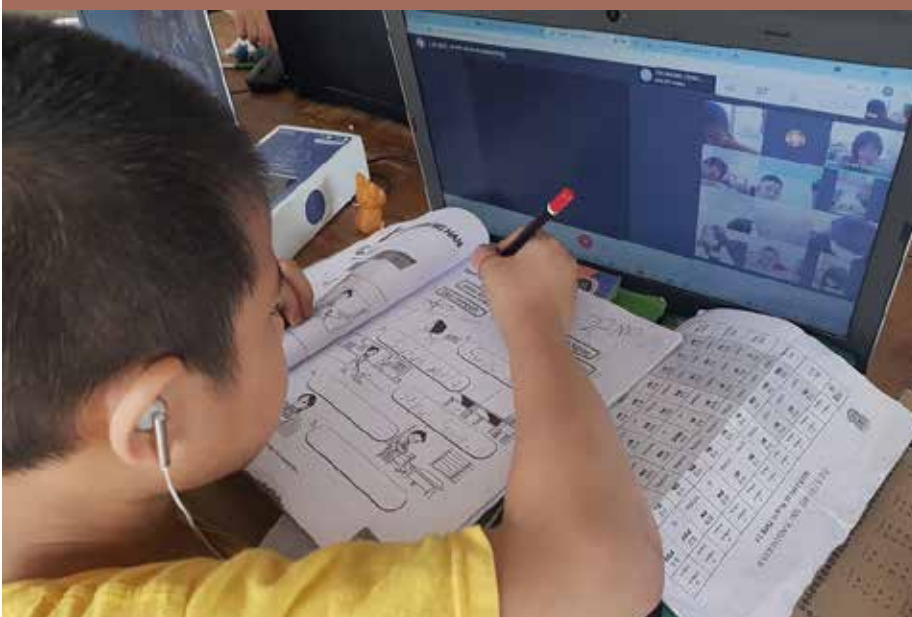

- Self-paced
- Flexibility
- School assignments these days consist of learning games, which encourages engagement.

Our children have expressed delight in online learning as this new practice improves their computer technical skills.

This contributes to better attention span and reduces day-dreaming as the time spent is relatively shorter as compared to attending physical school.

Dominic, 7 is very attentive during his online classes

He, amongst other kids, is very responsible and independent in learning

We had been monitoring the progress of the construction since Oct last year, from laying foundations to installation of internal and external support structure. Fortunately, everything is on schedule, and it has now been built to the third floor. Truly appreciate all of your blessings, sacrifices and dedication to make the new home's dream come true!

CNY CELEBRATION

Pandemic makes us realize what we cherish in life. Chit-chatting and having fun with friends and family have never been easy since then!

There is a tea ceremony session in reunion dinner every year. Children knelt in front of elders and served them tea. It was incredibly heart-warming and touching moments

Serving Tea with Heartfelt Gratitude

The younger generations served tea to the elders as an expression of respect and gratitude for being raised by them.
